

KELLY EDWARDS

Veteran producer and creative executive Kelly Edwards has worked with every major studio in Hollywood. Mentored by legendary director Garry Marshall at Disney and famed producer Laura Ziskin at Sony, Edwards eventually shifted her focus to television, where she served as a comedy executive at Fox and headed up UPN's Comedy division.

After producing a drama series for Paramount, she moved on to NBCUniversal, where she oversaw diversity for their twenty networks. Edwards spent her final stint as an exec creating HBO and Warner Media Entertainment's emerging artists programs. Along the way, she also produced a Christmas movie for Hallmark.

Edwards holds a B.A. in Theater from Vassar and an MFA in Screenwriting from Emerson College. She has been a Sundance Episodic Lab fellow and was recently staffed on the new Fox drama Our Kind Of People. Her new book The Executive Chair: A Writer's Guide To TV Series Development, will be released October 5th.
