

Siena East (Choctaw)

Siena East (Choctaw) is a writer, comedian, and actress based in Los Angeles. Her short film "Lycanphobic" was included in both the LA Skins Film Festival, where it was nominated in the Emerging Filmmaker category, and the NYU First Run Festival, where it won an award for Best Supporting Actress. In 2018, Siena was a part of the 3rd LA Skins Television Writers' lab, and her original pilot "Mixed Up" was selected for a live reading at the LA Skins 12th Annual Film Festival. In 2019, she was in the first all Native improv show at UCB. As a comedian, Siena was first featured in the Kibitz Room's clean showcase, where she won the audience choice award "The Best of the Bunch". Since then she has performed at the Comedy Union, The Ruby, and has regularly performed at ACME NoHo. Currently, Siena is working as a tv writer, and is managed by Thuan Dang at the Gotham Group.
